

The Eastern Kentucky University Interpreter Outreach Program presents

“Communication Matters: Interpreting in Sexuality Settings”

Presented in ASL Only

Bethany Gehman

Saturday, September 30

9:00 – 4:00 PM

Registration begins at 8:30

Grow Hall, Kentucky School for the Deaf, Danville KY 40422

Professional Development Session: This intensive, 6-hour workshop is intended to give interpreters the opportunity to examine sexuality issues, explore values/attitudes/beliefs about sexuality, identify situations where skills with sexuality interpreting would be useful, and apply what was learned to interpreting practice. Participants will be equipped with appropriate and effective tools to become more comfortable with interpreting sexuality content. This workshop does not only discuss sexuality issues, but also to discuss the importance of consent. Consent is not applicable only in sexual relationships, but it is also applicable in professional relationships between an interpreter and client. This will be a fun and enlightening experience for workshop attendants.

The Presenter: Bethany Gehman, a sexuality educator is currently advocating for safe and affirming space in various settings for everyone regardless of their sexual orientation, gender identity, and/or gender expression. Bethany provides sexuality education for people of all ages, conducts professional training, and promotes inclusive and comprehensive sexual health education in Deaf K-12 residential programs. She strives to connect with the community through her videos and interactions through her workshops / training. Advocacy and education cannot happen without genuine connections. Her current work focuses on examining the current climate of Deaf residential schools in the United States and providing resources to promote an inclusive environment for LGBTQ students and staff. When Bethany is not busy with her community work, she enjoys time with her partner and their children (three cats and many, many plants).
